EITHER

Option A

Read the passage below and answer Questions 01 to 06 which follow.

Verres has sacked the Treasury. He has devastated Asia and Pamphylia. His tenure of the city-praetorship was a record of robberies; and the province of Sicily found him an annihilating pestilence. Pronounce a just and scrupulous verdict against Verres, and you will keep the good name which ought always to be yours. Let us imagine, on the other hand, that his great wealth succeeds in undermining the conscience and honesty of the judges. Well, even then I shall accomplish one thing. For the general conclusion will not be that the judges failed to find a guilty defendant – or that the defendant lacked a competent prosecutor. On the contrary: the deduction will be that there are no good judges in the land. 5

I have a personal statement to make. On land and on sea, Gaius Verres has set me many traps. Certain of them I have avoided by my own precautions; others my loyal and vigilant friends have helped me to escape. But I have never felt so conscious of danger, never so apprehensive, as I do in this court today. The keen hopes that are invested in this speech of mine, the great crowd that is assembled here – these are disturbing enough. Yet it is not because of them that my anxiety is so great. No: 10 what alarms me is the fresh series of criminal plots that Verres has laid. By their means he proposes to ensnare, at one and the same time, myself, yourselves, the presiding praetor Manius Acilius Glabrio: indeed the whole Roman people itself, and its allies, and the other nations of the world – not to speak of the Senatorial Order and everything for which it stands. 15 20

Option B

Read the passages below and answer Questions 07 to 10 which follow.

Passage A

So Brutus reports that Caesar is converted to the good party? Splendid news. But where is he going to find them? Unless he hangs himself. But how foolish of Brutus to say such a thing! What has happened to that masterpiece of yours which I saw in Brutus's gallery, his family-tree with Ahala and Brutus the first consul? But what can he do?

5

I was very glad to read that even the man who started the whole criminal business has nothing good to say for my nephew, young Quintus. I was beginning to be afraid that Quintus was liked even by Brutus, who in his letter to me remarked: 'But I wish you could have had a taste of his stories.'

Att. 13, 40

Passage B

Our friend Brutus has passed me the speech he made at the meeting on the Capitol, and has requested me to correct it perfectly candidly before he publishes it. Now the sentiments of the speech are expressed with the utmost elegance, and the language could not possibly be bettered. Yet if I had pleaded that cause I should have written more fiercely. You can see the potentialities of the theme – and of the speaker. So I did not feel able to suggest any corrections.
