Source A After the Yalta Conference, the Russians did not conduct free elections in Poland. The Red Army's occupation of Poland was a fact and Stalin could do what he liked there. As a result of the failure to conduct free elections in Poland, President Truman lectured the Soviet Foreign Minister, Molotov, on the importance of 5 honouring agreements. Molotov complained that he had never been treated so roughly at an official meeting. The dispute over Poland had created an atmosphere of mistrust and suspicion between the two sides.

Source B Adapted from a speech given by George Marshall at Harvard University, 5 June, 1947

It is logical that the United States should do whatever it is able to do to assist in the return of normal economic health to the world. Our policy is not directed against any country or doctrine, but against hunger and poverty. Its purpose should be the revival of a working economy throughout the world so as to permit

5 the emergence of political and social conditions in which free institutions can exist.
