

MARK SCHEME for the October/November 2006 question paper

0490 RELIGIOUS STUDIES

0490/01 Paper 1, maximum raw mark 102

This mark scheme is published as an aid to teachers and students, to indicate the requirements of the examination. It shows the basis on which Examiners were instructed to award marks. It does not indicate the details of the discussions that took place at an Examiners' meeting before marking began.

All Examiners are instructed that alternative correct answers and unexpected approaches in candidates' scripts must be given marks that fairly reflect the relevant knowledge and skills demonstrated.

Mark schemes must be read in conjunction with the question papers and the report on the examination.

The grade thresholds for various grades are published in the report on the examination for most IGCSE, GCE Advanced Level and Advanced Subsidiary Level syllabuses.

- CIE will not enter into discussions or correspondence in connection with these mark schemes.

CIE is publishing the mark schemes for the October/November 2006 question papers for most IGCSE, GCE Advanced Level and Advanced Subsidiary Level syllabuses and some Ordinary Level syllabuses.

Section B

In this section, answer both parts of two of the questions.

4 Christianity

- (a) Describe what happens in the service of Holy Communion (Eucharist). [12]

Answers will vary according to the denomination/practice they are familiar with, if any. A top L4 answer should include reference to more than just the Consecration (e.g. Confession and Absolution, Ministry of the Word, Intercession etc.) but the key feature for L3 is the priest/ minister repeating the words of Jesus and the distribution of the bread and (normally) wine.

- (b) Explain the importance of this service for Christians. [12]

Fulfils the command of Jesus at the Last Supper; enables participation of believers in the mystical Body of Christ i.e. Church; e.g. comfort, reinforcement of faith, expression of sense of belonging, spiritual nourishment, sign of belonging etc.

5 Islam

- (a) Describe a religious wedding ceremony in Islam. [12]

The wedding ceremony may take place in the mosque or at home – or in both places if the bride stays at home and appoints an agent and witnesses to represent her at the ceremony. The essential parts of the ceremony are the couple giving their consent in the presence of at least two witnesses and the speaking and signing of the marriage contract (Aqd Nikah) which involves the giving of a valuable gift by the groom to the bride. The imam and guests will pray for the couple.

- (b) Explain the importance of a religious wedding for Muslims. [12]

This question allows a wide variety of answers which will be based on personal opinions; the focus of a good answer will be why a religious wedding is important to religious people, referring to the teachings about the importance and purpose of marriage to regulate human relationships and provide for the nurture of children in a stable environment and how a religious wedding shows the couple's commitment to these ideals.

6 Judaism

- (a) Describe what happens in a Jewish home at the festival of Pesach (Passover). [12]

Before Passover – yeast and yeast products (chametz) are searched out, and when found are either burned or sold to a non-Jew. A ritualised search takes place on the night before Passover (Erev Pesach). On the night in the home, reading the Haggadah, prayer, and eating the Seder meal with symbolic food/wine etc.

- (b) Explain the importance for Jews of the events celebrated at the festival. [12]

The festival commemorates the escape from slavery in Egypt, and a simple account of the Exodus story from the Bible can score L3 as it goes a long way towards explaining the importance of the events. The Passover showed the power of G-d in freeing them and supporting them through all the difficulties of the Exodus, proving the love of G-d for his people. Answers may in addition mention that celebrating the festival strengthens the family and community because it is based on the family but this, although creditworthy, is not required.

Section C

In this section answer both parts of either Question 7 or Question 8.

In each case, a maximum of half the marks (in proportion to the Level achieved) is available for each of the two religions required in each part-question.

7 (a) For two of Christianity, Islam and Judaism, describe the sacred writings of the religion. [12]

Christianity: Bible, divided into Old and New Testaments. OT pre-Christian (Jewish scriptures) but held to contain prophecy of the coming of Christ, also large body of general ethical teaching in addition to Jewish history, poetry etc. NT contains four gospels, Acts, epistles, Revelation; written in Greek. L4 answer will include reference to the four gospels telling the story of Jesus in different ways and the epistles containing the teaching of Paul and other Apostles. Used in Christian liturgy as well as private prayer and study.

Islam: the Qur'an is seen as the revealed and unchangeable word of Allah, dictated to the Prophet (pbuh) by the Angel Jibril. It is written in Arabic and is only completely authentic in that language. Some may include reference to the Hadith and earlier revelations to prophets before Muhammad (pbuh).

Judaism: Jewish Scriptures are largely equivalent to the Christian OT. The Torah (first five books) contain the early history of the Jews and the laws given to Moses by G-d. Other books contain history, prophecy, poetry and liturgy. Originally written in Hebrew (mostly – some later works in Aramaic).

(b) Explain why these sacred writings are important to believers in each of the two religions you have chosen. [12]

Christianity: the Bible is believed by many Christians to be the inerrant revealed word of God, by others to be authoritative and inspired although written by humans. Contains moral and ethical teachings, commandments, inspirational writing, religious history, all of which provide important guidance for Christians.

Islam: the Qur'an is the foundation of Islamic Law and is believed to provide complete guidance about all aspects of life. It is the essential study of every Muslim and all are encouraged to recite from it in Arabic. The printed copy is shown great respect.

Judaism: Orthodox Judaism regards the Bible/Torah/Tenakh as the directly inspired word of G-d and the source of the Law governing the religion – both the Ten Commandments and the other Mitzvot (613 in total) – the teachings of the Prophets (Neviim) and the other writings (Ketuvim). The Torah governs the practice of the religion, but other holy books, notably the Talmud, also play their part. In the Synagogue, the Torah Scrolls are displayed/read with great respect.

- 8 (a) For two of Christianity, Islam and Judaism, name a place of pilgrimage and describe what pilgrims do there.

[12]

Christianity: e.g. Bethlehem (birthplace of Jesus), Nazareth (Jesus' boyhood home), Galilee (scene of Jesus' ministry), Jerusalem (Holy Week/Easter etc.), Rome (St Peter; Pope / Vatican), Lourdes (healing / St Bernadette), Walsingham (Norfolk, England: 'England's Nazareth'), Santiago de Compostela (Spain: tomb of St James), Taizé (France; ecumenical community), Fatima (Portugal) / Medjugorije (Bosnia-Herzegovina) / Knock (Eire) visions of the Virgin Mary; or anywhere else appropriate. Pilgrims will pray and reflect on any historical associations of the place.

Islam: inevitably Makkah for the Hajj (or possibly 'Umrah'); they put on ihram (white seamless garment), do tawaf (circle the Ka'bah seven times), drink water from Zamzam and do the Sa'y (running between the hills), go to Arafat for the wuquf (stand before God, praying for mercy and meditating), collect 49 pebbles at Muzdalifah to throw at the three pillars at Mina the next day, make a sacrifice as part of Id-ul-Adha, and possibly return for seven more circuits of the Ka'bah. A 'brief' description is asked for, so L4 is available for a competent if generalised or incomplete account.

Judaism: although Judaism has three pilgrim festivals, since the destruction of the Temple these have been celebrated at home and modern pilgrimage in Judaism reflects the wish to visit places associated with important events in Jewish history – e.g. the Western Wall of the Temple at Jerusalem, Masada, Yad Vashem, Auschwitz-Birkenau. Jews will pray at the Western Wall; other places will give opportunities for less formal reflection.

- (b) Explain the importance of pilgrimage to the believers of each of the two religions you have chosen.

[12]

Christianity: importance of pilgrimage in general and to the chosen place is likely to be related to one or more of:

- place important in the life and ministry of Jesus,
- place is a centre of worship/learning,
- place was scene of a vision of Virgin Mary,
- place was associated with a saint,
- place is a centre of spiritual/physical healing.

Depending on the destination, pilgrimage is important to Christians because it reinforces their faith and makes them feel closer to God, it is to a place where miraculous healings have happened, or the place is associated with Jesus or a saint.

Islam: it is fulfilling an obligation to Allah – one of Five Pillars, strengthening the ummah and personal faith. The pilgrimage for the glory of Allah and the seeking of his forgiveness rather than any personal gain e.g. higher status (title Hajji / Hajja). The physical demands of the journey develop courage and perseverance, while the spiritual dimension should be a religious development and deepening of commitment.

Judaism: Pilgrimage per se is not an important part of modern Judaism though many Jews find visiting places of religious or historical significance strengthens their faith. Jerusalem is the site of the Temple, the original centre of Jewish worship, and Masada recalls Jewish heroism in the face of Roman oppression. The importance of places associated with the twentieth-century Holocaust is self-evident.
