Question 2

Refer to Fig. 2, information about 'Treasures of Brunei', a promotional campaign.

Treasures of Brunei

The 'Treasures of Brunei' promotional campaign in 2008 brought together the Brunei Tourism Authority, hotel and golf course providers as well as tour operators to target customers specifically from Singapore. 'Treasures of Brunei' tour packages allow visitors to experience the natural rainforest, the Malay heritage and the luxury leisure breaks that Brunei can offer.

Singapore Airlines supported the marketing campaign with a promotional fare between Singapore and Brunei. Other providers offer discount price packages to attract golfers, nature-lovers and cultural tourists to Brunei.

Travel agents in Singapore have been selling these packages, which have been promoted through advertisements in local newspapers and through the Brunei Tourism stand at the NATAS Travel Fair.

Question 3

Refer to Fig. 3, information about medical tourism.

Examiner's
Use

Medical Tourism

Medical tourism is one of the fastest growing segments of the tourism industry. High costs of medical treatment in developed countries such as the USA and the UK means that medical tourists are attracted to cheaper medical destinations such as Malaysia, Israel and Costa Rica. Medical tourists can seek treatments ranging from minor cosmetic dentistry to major heart surgery. Many medical tourists are from older demographics, generally between the ages of 45 and 65. Medical tourists often have high levels of disposable income.

The total cost of a medical vacation in Costa Rica (inclusive of airfares, accommodation, meals and excursions, as well as the planned medical procedure) is, for example, less than the cost of having only the medical treatment in the USA.

Medical tourism packages are mainly distributed through specialised websites on the Internet.
