generating more employment;
raising the level of minimum education;
making the social elite aware of the possibility of removing it;
presenting the government concrete programmes of prosperity;
drawing upon the resources of every social institution like Chamber of Commerce, university, research institutions, government, voluntary organisation, U.N., U.N. agencies, press, etc.
educating the public opinion that poverty is not inevitable.
accepting the principle that the world can compel a notion to eradicate poverty

Programmes To Eradicate Poverty

- 1) Appeal for the changed PERCEPTION from charity to MAN coming into his own right -- a right to good living.
- 2) Assess the effectivity of information, ideas, opinions, statistics, studies, data, arguments, examples, etc. on the segment of population that can move to eradicate poverty and give them in that measure through appropriate media.
- 3) Introduce in the curriculum at the right stage a full explanation that poverty is not inevitable, it is there because it is suffered and explain how it can be eliminated.
- 4) Devise programmes suitable to each sector that will indirectly eliminate poverty. E.g.
  - Craftsmen training schools for industry.
  - Farm schools for the government that try to raise production.
  - Adult education for voluntary organisations.
  - Development skits for media.
  - Themes for the writers that portray the psychological endeavour of individuals to escape poverty.
  - Studies for universities that will bring out case studies where segments of population have come out of poverty.
  - Success stories for journals.
  - Ideas for commerce which when implemented will remove poverty while they work for their own profit.
- 5) Appeal for an apex national organisation in each country that will address itself to the task of creating all these programmes and ideas.
- 6) Suggest UN should take on itself the authority of accepting the invitation of any nation to eradicate poverty or illiteracy or major diseases.
- 7) Suggest UN should declare that within 5 to 10 years poverty should be eradicated from the world. At the end of that period UN may take over one or more countries under its administration to eradicate it compulsorily.

8) Plead for a World Body that will embark on devising detailed programmes for each country where more than 10% of the population is poor. These programmes should be comprehensive and must be able to yield results within one decade.

9) Declare that NO nation has the right to keep its population POOR.
