

The press and the Nation rise and fall Together

Compare that what makes a nation and press Rise.

*Independence,
Self-sufficiency,
Developed,
Constitutional,
Literate,
Accommodating difference of opinion or compromising,
Not having absolute freedom,
Active and energetic,
Aiming at developing state apparatus,
Etc.*

Compare that what makes a nation and press Fall.

Just go against what makes them Rise.

DON'T FORGET TO GIVE EXAMPLES FROM VARIOUS NATIONS AND MEDIA.

The press and the Nation rise and fall Together

Introduction

Press is the most powerful

It keeps us in touch with the current world affairs

It ventilates the grievances of the public

Educative value of the newspaper

Freedom of press---crucial for development

Importance of freedom speech

Absence of a free press impairs development

Investigation generalism can also unearth information

Freedom of press is the symbol of democracy

Free press caused the world war II

Source of information

Brutal action of Nazis portrayed by press

Famine--revolution occurs if information from the press are received correctly

Reforms of societies

Conclusion

Outline by fromQAU:

The press and the Nation rise and fall Together

Compare that what makes a nation and press Rise.

Independence,

Self-sufficiency,

Developed,

Constitutional,

Literate,
Accommodating difference of opinion or compromising,
Not having absolute freedom,
Active and energetic,
Aiming at developing state apparatus,
Etc.

Compare that what makes a nation and press Fall.
Just go against what makes them Rise.

DON'T FORGET TO GIVE EXAMPLES FROM VARIOUS NATIONS AND MEDIA.

In my point of view difference appears at the initial stage while grasping the Topic of essay
"The press and the Nation rise and fall Together"

What I have understood from Saqib Shah's provided outline: He has considered Press and Nation interlinked rather nation dependent on press having positive correlation. At times he has tried to prove it in a "cause and effect" analysis: Press being cause and effect of its results on nation. If there is any positive development in press that will bring a positive development for the nation and vice versa.

And from fromQAU's provided outline: I have reached to a conclusion that fromQAU has took essay topic in a novel style which most of the candidates don't bother to think of not because of its ineffectiveness but mostly because of new scenario. To me, he has considered press and nation two entities and has compared in a parallel way. He has not considered press as input and nation as output in other words contrary to cause and effect approach. In nut shell fromQAU has compared the similarities between press and nation. While Saqib Shah has considered both press and nation as complementary to each other. Press complements nation.

If I were assigned the task to assess both the candidates I must not have assigned zero to Saqib Shah if he had succeeded in connecting both the press and nation. Outline doesn't disqualify a candidate from passing the paper it is the logical production of relevant material within the essay which is decisive. I can't jump to the conclusion only looking at the outline because I don't know what the writer is going to produce in discussion on these precise outlines, may be my perception and his intention mismatch at any point. Writer might have good stuff to write in the essay which is not reflected in the outline. Funny enough sometimes outlines/headlines/titles mislead us when these are too much precise: like if I have written "Mass Media" in the outline. One can't comment confidently that whether I am going to criticize Mass Media or I am going to appreciate it in the body of essay. Nonetheless, proper outline gives a good impression and gives you strength and flow to write your essay logically and speedily with balanced approach.

And for fromQAU: If he had given a cause and effect touch along with his existing outline I might have rated him more than the majority. Because of his out of box approach, giving a dynamic touch to the topic.

I hope I have justified with this discussion. In any way it's my personal opinion which is subject to flawed approach