

Victorian Certificate of Education 2013

SUPERVISOR TO ATTACH PROCESSING LABEL HERE

STUDENT NUMBER

Figures

Words

Letter

--

AUSTRALIAN POLITICS

Written examination

Monday 4 November 2013

Reading time: 3.00 pm to 3.15 pm (15 minutes)

Writing time: 3.15 pm to 5.15 pm (2 hours)

QUESTION AND ANSWER BOOK

Structure of book

Section	Number of questions	Number of questions to be answered	Number of marks
A	4	4	60
B	4	1	20
			Total 80

- Students are permitted to bring into the examination room: pens, pencils, highlighters, erasers, sharpeners and rulers.
- Students are NOT permitted to bring into the examination room: blank sheets of paper and/or white out liquid/tape.
- No calculator is allowed in this examination.

Materials supplied

- Question and answer book of 19 pages.
- Additional space is available at the end of the book if you need extra paper to complete an answer.

Instructions

- Write your student number in the space provided above on this page.
- All written responses must be in English.

Students are NOT permitted to bring mobile phones and/or any other unauthorised electronic devices into the examination room.

SECTION A*Instructions for Section A

Answer all questions in the spaces provided.

Australian democracy

One of the main views people have of everyday ‘politics’ is snippets of Question Time from parliament on the nightly television news. These pictures and sounds are often marked by conflict and confrontation, mostly very male-dominated and an overly black and white, party political approach to issues which really need to be discussed in a more complex, intelligent and sensitive way. Question Time is the means by which the Opposition can hold governments to account, to put them under scrutiny and pressure. From time to time it does actually fulfil this function. But more often the Question Time is a very artificial and predictable show. The politicians take it in turns. First there is a sharp hostile question from an opposition member of parliament to a government minister. This comes complete with interjections and back-up calls for action or resignation from other opposition members. Then the government has its turn, and one of the government backbenchers asks a set-up question to a government minister, inviting them to tell everyone how well the government is doing – or how badly the opposition is doing – on a particular issue. This usually leads to a long, often boring and usually self-congratulating speech from a government minister. This scripted set-up question is called a ‘Dorothy Dixer’.

Source: Andrew Scott, Politics, Parties and Issues in Australia: An Introduction, Pearson Originals, NSW, 2012, p. 79

Question 1 (15 marks)

Select the most appropriate answer (A.–D.) for parts a. and b. and write your answers in the boxes.

- a. Which of the following is the most accurate definition of the term ‘Question Time’ in the Australian Parliament? 1 mark

- A. a session during a sitting of the House of Representatives in which the executive questions and scrutinises the legislature
- B. a session during sittings of both the House of Representatives and the Senate in which the executive questions and scrutinises the legislature
- C. a session during a sitting of the House of Representatives in which the prime minister answers questions from the Opposition
- D. a session during sittings of both the House of Representatives and the Senate in which the legislature questions and scrutinises the executive

- b. Which of the following parliamentary questions is best described as a ‘Dorothy Dixer’? 1 mark

- A. ‘Could the Prime Minister explain to the House just why the government has broken its promise not to introduce any new taxes?’
- B. ‘Could the Treasurer describe the government’s current policies, which have resulted in the recent sharp fall in the level of unemployment in Australia?’
- C. ‘Why is the government aiming to reduce Australia’s carbon emissions by far less than other comparable, developed nations?’
- D. ‘Did the Foreign Minister bring items into Australia that the Minister deliberately failed to declare to customs officials at the airport? Yes or no?’

Australian democracy in perspective

Question 2 (15 marks)

... Australian parties and the party system ... are the critical components in the polity [political system] ... Government is party government. Elections are essentially party contests, and the mechanics of electoral systems are determined by party policies and party advantages. Legislatures are party chambers. Legislators are overwhelmingly party members. The majority of electors follow their party identification. Politics in Australia are party politics.

Source: D Jaensch, The Politics of Australia, Macmillan Education Australia, South Yarra, 1998, p. 217;
 Reproduced by permission of Macmillan Education Australia

- a. What is meant by the term ‘political party’? 2 marks

---

---

---

---

- b. Outline two key differences between the Australian political party system and the political party system of another political system you have studied this year. 4 marks

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

- c. Outline two reasons why the Australian Public Service is a major source of policy advice for the Australian Government.

4 marks

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

- d. Other than the Australian Public Service, explain the role of two organisations or individuals that have sought to influence the formulation of a contemporary domestic policy you have studied this year.

6 marks

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

Foreign policy

Question 4 (15 marks)

The challenge for Australian foreign policy will be ... to pursue our own political and economic interests with maximum effectiveness, but in a way that makes as positive a contribution as possible to a more peaceful and prosperous world ... there are two very considerable potential assets which Australia can bring to that task. The first is our status as a middle power, with the capacity that implies for effective action and influence. The other is our location alongside South-East Asia in the Asia Pacific region, the most economically dynamic in the world.

Source: G Evans and B Grant, Australia's Foreign Relations in the World of the 1990s, Melbourne University Press, Carlton, 1991, p. 321

- a. In relation to Australian foreign policy, what is meant by the term 'middle power'? 2 marks

---

---

---

---

- b. Outline two specific ways in which Australia has made a contribution towards 'a more peaceful and prosperous world'. 4 marks

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

SECTION B – Essay questions*Instructions for Section B

Answer one of the following four questions in the space provided.

Question 1 (20 marks)

‘There is a range of key values and principles in a democratic political system.’

How effectively does the Australian political system achieve these values and principles?

OR

Question 2 (20 marks)

‘An effective legislative branch of government should closely reflect the society that it represents.’

How effectively has the Australian Parliament achieved this objective in comparison with the legislative branch of another political system you have studied this year?

OR

Question 3 (20 marks)

‘A mandate granted to a government by voters is the most legitimate basis on which to introduce new public policy.’

Discuss this statement in relation to one or more contemporary domestic policy issues you have studied this year.

OR

Question 4 (20 marks)

Discuss the key challenges facing contemporary Australian foreign policy. How has Australian foreign policy dealt with each of these challenges in recent years?

